This page is an area to demonstrate the upgraded potential of the Bang the Table website with the changes introduced in December 2009. It will also provide a resource area for our clients and the public prior to the completion and launch of our corporate site in the New Year.

Golden Rules of Online Participation

 Back in September while attending the IAP2 conference in Glasgow I sat down and wrote out 10 golden rules for online engagement for our blog. I thought I would review them this week and don't feel the need to change much so I thought I would reproduce them here.

Of course we are still learning as we go so I will probably revisit these again in a few months to add to or edit the list. Perhaps others would like to join in too?

Here goes:

1. The most important lesson so far is that if you engage on line you must back your consultation with robust statistics.
